V. F. W. Week Announced For Week January 6 to 13

Arthur C. Schiller, Publicity Chairman.

Coincident with the convening of the 73rd Congress at Washington, D. C., the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has designated the week of January 6th-13th, inclusive, as "V. F. W. Week."

In making this announcement Commander Sylvester Tyler, of William Martin Post No. 725, V. F. W., explains that "V. F. W. Week" will be a nationwide observance designed to acquaint the public in general with the history, purposes and activities of the organization. A series of 5 minute radio addresses is to be broadcast from virtually all of the approximately 650 radio stations in the country while similar addresses will be given before thousands of civic groups, business clubs and other organizations.

Inasmuch as the legislative program of the V. F. W. which is to be submitted this month to the national Congress, affects not only the members of our organization, but all veterans and the general public as well, it is important that this program be widely known and understood if we are to be successful in obtaining its consideration by Congress.

We are particularly eager to make it generally understood that 'veterans' do not constitute a special group or class, 'Veterans' are people - voters - and taxpayers. Veterans are lawyers, business men and farmers. They are to be found in every walk of life and in every profession. The welfare of the veteran is inevitably the welfare of the people as a whole, not only because he is an integral part of the people, but because a real democracy cannot continue to exist unless each of its proponent parts is equally considered in all matters of justice and well-being.

Legislative measures to be submitted to Congress this session by the V. F. W. include bills making the federal government responsible for the care of disabled and needy veterans. These include adequate relief for veterans suffering from injury or disease incurred in actual war service; relief for all veterans who are no longer able to carry on by themselves; relief for the widows and orphans of all veterans; repeal of the Economy Act, and immediate cash payment of adjusted service certificates.

Don't forget William Martin Posts' First Anniversary Dance on January 6th, at the Frankfort Hall. You will be assured of a good time. So be sure to come.

Note: Since it is impossible to publish more than one article a week in this paper; there will be extended over a period of weeks articles pertaining to the Aims and Purposes of The V. F. W.

Name Men For Will Co., Corn-Hog Adjustment Program

Names of nine men appointed by the state advisory committee to be members of the temporary campaign committee for the government's corn-hog adjustment program Will County were received the past week by Farm Adviser L. W. Braham.

Members of the newly appointed committee are: R. O. Mather, Plainfield; Joe Kestle, Manhattan; Andrew L. Quigley, Symerton; Henry E. Buss, Elwood; Elmer Erickson, Monee; George Haines, Crete; Harry Lehnert, Peotone; Byron Gaskill, Joliet; R. 2 and John N. Cryder, Plainfield.

The state advisory committee which appointed the county committee is composed of Dean H. W. Mumford, director of extension, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, chairman; J. E. Fulkerson, Jerseyville; Ray E. Miller, director of livestock marketing for the Illinois Agricultural Association, Chicago and J. H. Lloyd, assistant director of the Illinois State Department of Agriculture, Springfield.

Appointment of the temporary county committee marks the first step in the local campaign calling for renting to the government of 20 to 30 per cent of the average corn acreage grown during the past two years the basis of payment to be 30 cents a bushel on the average yield. The hog agreement, in return for a reduction of 25 per cent from the average production of the past two years, will pay the co-operating producer $5 a head on 75 per cent of his average hog production during the two-year base period. Expenses of administering the program will be deducted from benefit payments due to the contract signers.

Members of the newly appointed county committee will assist Farm Adviser Braham and the extension service of the College of Agriculture University of Illinois in planning the county campaign and in dividing the county into communities, arranging the schedule of community meetings, selecting temporary community committee to help with the meetings and sign-up stations and arranging for the official organization meetings in the various communities when it

FRANKFORT MAYOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the convening of Congress at Washington, D. C., in January denotes the intensive consideration of matters of public interest, and,

Whereas, important legislation affecting the general welfare of this community and all other communities throughout the country, is to be submitted to Congress by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, represented in this city by William Martin Post No. 725, and,

Whereas, the service rendered to this community and to the country as a whole by the members of this organization, embrace not only armed service in time of war, but also valuable support of all activities tending to improve citizenship and develop a higher standard of Americanism, it is my pleasure and privilege as Mayor of the City of Frankfort, State of Illinois, to hereby designate and Proclaim the week of January 6th to January 13th, inclusive, as "V. F. W. Week," for the purpose of promoting greater understanding between this organization and the public at large, and to urge the sympathetic cooperation of all citizens with the members of America's Gold Chevron Order - the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

Signed, GEO. F. HASS, Mayor.

And The Tables Were Turned on The Jokers

Two of the local Tinley merchants played a Halloween prank out of season Saturday night and turned an apparent joke into an evening of uncomfortable torture.

Upon finding his barbershop ransacked Wally Mancke called police authorities and traced the culprits who were brought to George Lorenz's for an intensive grilling.

One man was summoned from the bath tub and the other from his fiancée's arms, who was in a very comfortable position with his shoes off trying to cover up his tracks.

Being accused of stealing a sum of money after two hours they were finally let in on the joke and told what a bunch of monkeys they had been. He who laughs last, laughs best the old saying goes.

Wolf Rd. Injunction Case May Come Up Next Week

The Wolf road condemnation suit matter is resting for the present as no judge is available at the moment to hear the injunction suit which the school directors of the Cleveland school district secured in the Will County Circuit Court recently.

Attorney A. H. Krusemark who is handling the case for the county has prepared his defense and expects to get the case up for hearing in Circuit Court the latter part of next week.

If the temporary injunction is dissolved the next move will be to get the matter of damages before a jury who will then say what the county is to pay for the land condemned for the Wolf road right of way thru the Cleveland farm.

LOUIS GOESEL OF TINLEY FOUND DEAD IN BED

Louis Goesel, aged 57 years well known resident of Tinley Park was found dead in bed Tuesday noon by his wife. When Mrs. Goesel arose she saw her husband lying on his side apparently sleeping. She started the family washing and came up a short time later and went into the bedroom and thought Mr. Goesel was still sleeping. Not wishing to disturb him she went back to her work. Noon came and Mr. Goesel had not arisen. When his wife went to his room she found him lying in the same position she had seen him in the morning. She called him and getting no response she felt of the body and discovered it was cold. Horrified, Mrs. Goesel called for help and her father Mr. Wineberg responded. Dr. R. H. Carmichael was summoned and upon examining the body thought Mr. Goesel apparently had been dead for several hours. Either a stroke of apoplexy or a blood clot is supposed to have been the cause of death.

Mr. Goesel had been having a cold for several days. Saturday he was about the village and the news of his very sudden demise came as a great shock to the community.

Mr. Goesel had been in the employ of the International Harvester Company for over 32 years and was about to be pensioned.

Louis Goesel was born in Goesselville north of Tinley Park, July 20, 1876.

November 20, 1899 he was united in marriage with Miss Minnie Weinberg. They have resided in Tinley Park ever since. About the time of his marriage he entered the employ of the old McCormick Harvester Works which later became part of the International Harvester Company.

Surviving are his widow, one son Clarence of Silvis, Ill., one grand child; four brothers, Berthold, Christian, Charles and Edward; four sisters, Mrs. Charles Reiser, Mrs. Jacob Bormet, Mrs. Fred Tagenhorst and Mrs. Frank Kreuger.

Funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon at 1:30 p. m., at the late home to the Zion Lutheran church at two o'clock, with the Rev. Albert Buddenhagen officiating.

WLS Orchestra To Play at Tinley Vol. Fire Dept. Ball

The big attraction will be Tom Owen and his orchestra and entertainers direct from the WLS radio station. A capacity house is expected. There will be five cash prizes for the men and five cash prizes for the ladies. The grand march will take place at 11 o'clock. Everybody is invited.

Letter of Appreciation

A CENTURY OF PROGRESS.
Chicago, Ill. Jan. 3, 1934.

Editor News-Bulletin,
Mokena, Illinois.

Dear Sir: With the close of 1933, we want to express the high appreciation we feel for the generous aid you have afforded the Exposition. We are fully cognizant of the inestimable value of this support, in making the Exposition a leading factor in national recovery.

Plans for the 1934 Fair are progressing with significant rapidity. We shall have much that is new diverting and stimulating. We could ask no better augury for its success than your continued interest, sympathy and support.

With deep appreciation for the wholehearted co-operation you have given us, and with the season's greetings, we are

Sincerely yours,

L. R. Lohr

Tinley Returns to Pioneer Days

Tinley Park has again returned to the old pioneer days. Two game hunters shot a huge 20 pound turkey out of season and hid the bird under a local bridge. Chief of Police Harry Uthe was summoned, found the turkey cold packed and dressed, but being an officer of the law decided to give the fowl to one of his friends. Via Fair store delivery service the turkey was delivered intact addressed to Marcus Klepper, Mick having had his quota of turkey this year, delivered the bird to Jack. When the package was opened it was discovered the contents was one decayed turkey shot several weeks ago.

Sparks Start Root Fire at Mokena

Sparks from a furnace set fire to the roof of the residence of Mrs. J. V. Hall on the Wolf road north of Mokena Friday afternoon. Mrs. Hall discovered the blaze and tried to extinguish it with a garden hose, but there was not enough pressure to throw the water high enough to reach the blaze. A call was then put in for the Mokena Fire Department and within less than five minutes the fire department responded with their new fire truck and had the fire out in a jiffy. The firemen are to be complimented for their prompt response and the excellent work they did. A number of the firemen were working on CWA work a few miles out of town when the fire siren blew, and hurried to town and were on the job fighting the fire. The damage which was small was covered by insurance.

Elect New Church Council Members

At the annual meeting on Tuesday of the congregation of the St. John Evangelical church of Mokena, three new members were elected for two years to the church council. They are: Wm. Junker, Valentine Scheer and Howard Martie. These new members will be installed next Sunday during the service.

They with the three remaining members, William Schult, Emil Keuch and Steven Nemeth form the St. John church council for 1934.

The retiring members are I. D. Marti, Emil Cappel and Karl Krapp. They have given their best in unselfish service to the church in the last year and have manifested zeal and faithfulness.

The Cemetery Board remains the same with all former members serving again and they too, have done good work.

FRANKFORT MAN ATTENDS INSTITUTE MEETING

Emil G. Tewes of Frankfort attended a dinner and lecture at the Chicago Lighting Institute in the Civic Opera House last Friday. Nela Park's consulting engineers of the Thomas A. Edison laboratory of East Orange New Jersey, had charge of the meeting.

CWA Pay Checks Help Tinley Trade

Mayor Charles Nielsen of Tinley Park finds that the CWA projects in the village have had very beneficial results in more ways than one. As result of having several pay days, the local people who have been employed on the various projects have been paying off old bills and have been able to purchase new commodities which has all helped the local business men. The money which has been put in circulation has been felt around the community. The CWA jobs have been a veritable Godsend to the unemployed.

Mayor Nielsen says that out of the 49 men employed on local jobs, 95 per cent are local men. Street work and landscaping of the school yard have been the major projects. The interior of the school is also to be decorated by the CWA.

Allotments for the local projects run to February 15th.

Rock Island Reduces Suburban Rates Ten Per Cent

A ten per cent reduction in suburban railroad fares on the Rock Island became effective January 2nd and will continue in force until May 31st, 1934. The new rates from Mokena to points east to Chicago and west to Joliet for round trips are as follows:

|             |        |
|-------------|--------|
| Chicago     | $1.08 |
| Englewood   | .85    |
| Blue Island | .53c   |
| Midlothian  | .42c   |
| Oak Forest  | .36c   |
| Tinley Park | .24c   |
| New Lenox   | .15c   |
| Joliet      | .42c   |

A ten per cent reduction has also been made on the 54 ride monthly tickets which are now $9.63.

The new rates have stimulated passenger business. The rates are cheaper than one could drive an automobile for to many of the points in the suburban area.

Mokena Board Sets License Deadlines

The Mokena village board set the first of April as the deadline for the payment of local automobile license fees at their monthly meeting Tuesday evening. The board also set Jan. 15th as the deadline for the payment of village water tax. All owners who are long overdue in the payments of their water bills will be shut off. Several water users were recently shut off.

John T. Cooper, Sr., Resident Orland Twp. For 83 Years, Dies

John T. Cooper, Sr., 87 years old, pioneer Cook County resident for 83 years, passed away at his home in Orland Township early Sunday morning after a short illness.

His death was caused by an attack of bronchial pneumonia.

He was born in Wisbeach, Lincolnshire, England in 1846 and came to Orland in 1850 with his parents, Thomas and Eleanor Cooper, who settled on a farm one-half mile south of Orland.

Here he grew into manhood, attending the district schools and in 1869 he was married to Sarah Jane Sayers of Will County. The young couple made their home on the farm where Mr. Cooper spent the remainder of his life.

He took an active interest in the affairs of the Township, serving as a school director for 35 years. He also served the Township several terms as highway commissioner. He was a charter member of the old Milk Shippers Union and acted as one of its directors for several years.

Mr. Cooper was a life-long member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

This last Christmas Mr. Cooper enjoyed a dinner with his children and grand children at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Newton and with the exception of a slight cold, seemed to be in apparent good health.

On Thursday bronchial trouble developed and he was confined to his bed. For a time he appeared better, but the illness was too severe and the end came about 1 a. m., Sunday morning, his children being present with him at his bedside at the time.

Mr. Cooper had led a long and useful life in his community and was well known and highly esteemed throughout the district. His kindly disposition and manner made him beloved and respected by all who knew him and his many relatives and friends feel a great loss in his passing. He was very active up to the time of his last illness.

His beloved wife passed away in 1912. The surviving children are: Albert H. Cooper, Rockford, Ill., Harriett E. Creer, Frank G. Cooper, Alice L. Newton, Howard G. Cooper, and John T. Cooper, Jr., all of Orland Park. One daughter, Flora E. Beagley, died in 1913.

There are 21 grand children and one great grand child living. Also surviving him are two sisters, Ellen Sayers of Orland and Anna Sayers of St. Petersburg, Florida; four brothers, George H. Cooper of St. Petersburg, Florida, Edwin Cooper of La Grange, Ill., Edgar H. Cooper of Orland Park and Will Cooper of Goodland, Indiana. Another brother, James Cooper, died in 1924.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the late home and at two o'clock in the Orland Park M. E. church with the Rev. John Mullen and the Rev. Paul T. Sanders officiating. A quartet consisting of Mrs. George Gee, Jr., Mrs. Mina Kay, Ray Glahn and Clarence Mahaffay sang the hymns at the services, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Adelle Cooper.

Burial was in the Cooper cemetery.

Mokena CYO Defeat Matteson

FRANKFORT PIONEER DIES JANUARY 1ST

Mrs. Elizabeth Bechstein who has been a resident of Will County ever since 1858, died Monday evening, January 1st at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Nelson of Mokena.

Mrs. Bechstein nee Bettenhausen, was born in Koenigswald, Germany, March 26, 1855.

In 1858 she came with her parents to America. They settled in this section and the deceased has spent practically all of her life in this vicinity.

She was united in marriage on September 9, 1876, with Henry Bechstein. To this union were born, two sons and five daughters. Two sons and three daughters have preceded the mother in death. Mr. Bechstein passed away in 1903.

Surviving are: two daughters, Mrs. Elmer Nelson of Mokena and Mrs. Phillip Stege of Matteson; one step son, Henry Bechstein, seven grand children, three great-grand children, and one sister, Mrs. H. Schilling. She attained the age of 78 years, 9 months and 1 day.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the St. Peter's Evangelical Church in Frankfort with Rev. G. G. Gerhold officiating.

World's Fair Buses Seen In Tinley Park

Tinley Park has the appearance of the Chicago World's Fair Grounds since the Greyhound busses used in the Fair grounds are running thru Tinley Park on Oak Park avenue. These busses are being used to transport CWA workers to and from their work in this section. Side curtains are fastened so the workers riding these busses are protected from the weather. About 100 men are hauled at a time.

May Form Christian Science Society in Tinley

The WEDDING MARCH MURDER

by MONTE BARRETT

Copyright, 1932, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.
WNU Service.

SYNOPSIS

Waiting in the minister's study while the wedding procession is being marshaled, Jim Franklin, about to be married to Doris Carmody, is stabbed to death. Callis Shipley, one of the bridesmaids, is obviously in a state of anxiety. Peter Cardigan, novelist, and amateur detective of some note, with Sergeant Kilday, of the New York police, begin the official investigation. The dagger used by the murderer is found. Franklin, while waiting, had many visitors, among them his mistress, an actress, "Choo Choo Train"; his intended wife's father, Ambrose Carmody; her brother, Rylie; Daniel Bullis, well-known politician, and an unknown woman in a blue frock, who had quarreled openly with Franklin.

CHAPTER II—Continued

"Where had you been, Royce?" Kilday wheeled quickly to the newspaper man.

"Out in the vestibule of the church, looking for Milo Dunbar," replied Royce.

"For me?" Dunbar looked at the editor inquisitively.

"Jim wanted you to do him a favor," Nick explained.

"We'll come to that later," Kilday interrupted impatiently. "When you got back here to the sacristy, did you see Bullis, or hear anything of his quarrel with Franklin?"

"No."

"How about the woman in blue? Did you see her? Was that Choo Choo Train?"

"No, I didn't see her. But it couldn't have been Choo Choo," Royce was quite positive. Choo Choo entered later, from the outside door. I'm sure she hadn't been here before, because Jim was surprised to see her."

"And you never saw the woman in blue?"

Nick shook his head. "Both she and Bullis must have left by the back door. This is the first I had heard of either of them."

"Didn't Doctor Abernathy say anything about them?" Kilday persisted.

Royce meditated, frowning. "No, he never mentioned them. I remember he did say, 'This is the strangest wedding I ever saw.' I didn't know he was referring to these visitors, however."

Doctor Abernathy leaned forward quickly. "Tell them what you said, in reply to that, Mr. Royce," he urged.

"I don't remember—what did I say?" inquired Royce.

"You said," the rector's face flushed with sincerity, "it may be stranger, before it's over."

"Yes," Nick smiled. "I remember saying that now."

"Just what did you think was going to be so strange, Royce?" Sergeant Kilday was quick to follow up the new lead.

Royce hesitated. "That gets back to the reason Jim asked me to go out in front and find Milo Dunbar," he began slowly. "And to Rylie Carmody's quarrel with him, just after we arrived here."

"Did you hear that quarrel?"

"No, Jim told me about it. Doctor Abernathy was here when Rylie came, though. He can verify that part of it."

The rector nodded, reluctantly, it seemed to Peter.

"It was about twenty minutes to four," Royce continued. "Rylie drove up to the side of the church in a roadster, and came in here demanding to see Franklin alone. He was beside himself with anger."

"Doctor Abernathy invited him to use his study. He and Jim were in there about two minutes. Then Rylie rushed out. He didn't stop to speak to either the doctor or me. He left the church very hurriedly and drove off in his car. I watched him from the door, there."

"But you say Franklin told you about this quarrel?"

"Yes. Immediately afterward, he called me into the study and explained that some one had told Rylie about his affair with Choo Choo Train. The boy had come to demand an explanation. Jim had told him the truth. There was nothing else to do."

Royce left his chair and walked restlessly about the room as he continued his story. "It seems that Rylie demanded to know if the affair had ended. Jim made the mistake of trying to talk to the boy as one man of the world to another. It didn't work. Rylie declared he was going to stop the wedding. Before Jim could stop him, he rushed out of the room, and was gone."

"Jim was worried. He was afraid the boy might cause some sort of disturbance during the ceremony. He was just wrought up enough to do such a thing. So he asked me to hurry out in front and find Milo Dunbar. Mr. Dunbar is—or was—Jim's law partner. I was to explain what had happened and ask him to keep an eye out for Rylie, when he entered the church. Jim was certain that Mr. Dunbar could handle it."

"But I couldn't locate Dunbar. That was why I was gone so long. But Rylie wasn't there, either, and I finally decided that the boy would be all right, after he had had time to think things over. At any rate, I couldn't remain away any longer, as it was about time for the service to start. So I came on back here."

"I was right there in the church, all the time," declared Milo Dunbar. His alert gray glance was fastened on the newspaper man.

"I'd like to know where? I couldn't locate you."

"Let's get all this straight," Kilday, hands behind him, studied Royce shrewdly. "Shortly after you and Franklin arrived, Rylie Carmody came. He was evidently very angry. Both you and Doctor Abernathy saw him. He talked with Franklin in the rector's study, and then left hurriedly. Later Franklin confided the nature of this quarrel to you, and you went out in front in search of Mr. Dunbar, but were unsuccessful in finding him."

"While you were away, Doctor Abernathy was called to the telephone, and when he came out he found Franklin quarreling with a mysterious woman in blue—a blond. Franklin declared the woman was hysterical over a trust fund and hurried her into the study, where they quarreled. This woman was not Choo Choo Train, because Choo Choo was wearing green. At any rate, while the woman was still in the study, Daniel Bullis came here demanding to see Franklin. He refused to wait, and pushed on into the study in spite of Doctor Abernathy's warning that Franklin was busy. Then you came back, Royce."

"And when the doctor told you he had never seen such a strange wedding, you told him it might be stranger, before it was over. You say you were referring to Rylie Carmody."

"I was," declared Royce emphatically.

"Never mind that now," Kilday brushed aside the interruption. "Neither of you saw the woman in blue or Daniel Bullis leave the study. But just a few minutes before the ceremony was to start, you say that Mr. Ambrose Carmody came back to see Franklin. I believe your inference was that they quarreled."

"I can explain that," Ambrose Carmody broke in. "I did have an argument with Franklin. Just before we left the house for the church, some one telephoned. It was an anonymous message. Normally I would have paid no attention to it. But it so vitally concerned the welfare of my family, I thought it deserved recognition. After reaching the church, I asked Franklin for an explanation."

"What was that message, Mr. Carmody?"

"It concerned this actress, Choo Choo Train. I was informed of her affair with Franklin."

"Was it a man's voice, or a woman's?" demanded Peter Cardigan.

"A man's."

"And you asked Franklin about it?"

"Yes. When I reached this room, both Royce and Doctor Abernathy were present. I inquired for Franklin, and they informed me he was in the study. I knocked. Franklin opened the door almost immediately. I don't know what had become of all these people they say had been in the study. There was no one else there at the time. I told Franklin what I had heard, and demanded an explanation. I made it clear that I had to know the truth before the wedding. Franklin denied there was any truth in the message. He gave me his word as a gentleman on it and I believed him."

"That was all then?" Kilday prompted him.

"Yes." Except for the heightened color in his face, Carmody gave no outward sign of emotion.

"I can substantiate a part of that," volunteered Doctor Abernathy. "When Mr. Carmody left the study, I heard him say, 'I have your word for it?' and I heard Mr. Franklin say, 'You have.'"

Peter Cardigan interrupted with a question. "Did you take advantage of Mr. Carmody's presence to inform him of this quarrel which had so disturbed you?" he asked the rector.

"No," Doctor Abernathy again moistened his lips. "I decided against it."

"But earlier you had made up your mind to tell him," the novelist persisted. "What caused you to change your decision?"

"I only intended to interfere if, in my opinion, there were cause to question the advisability of proceeding with the ceremony," replied the rector slowly. "After consideration, I decided this was not true. The woman in blue had confirmed Franklin's statement that her quarrel was of a business rather than a personal nature. Of course," he added, "it would have been different had I been present when Miss Train, the actress, arrived. This is the first I had heard of that."

"I'm," Sergeant Kilday digested this in silence for a moment. Then he turned to Royce. "When was it Choo Choo arrived on the scene?"

"After Doctor Abernathy had entered the church," said Royce. "When Mr. Carmody left the study, Doctor Abernathy walked to the door with him. Mr. Carmody walked around the outside of the church. The last thing I heard him say was, 'Let's start on time.' It was then only about one minute of four. Doctor Abernathy turned to us and asked if we were ready. Jim said we were. Doctor Abernathy then entered the church, through this door. I was standing here, by the door, leaving it open a crack so that I could see what happened inside, so, naturally, my back was to Jim."

"I never saw Choo Choo enter. The first I knew that she was here, was when I heard Jim say, 'What are you doing here? I thought I told you to stay away?'"

"She said, 'I intended to, Jim, until Fletcher phoned me that you said to come, after all,' she said."

"Jim denied that he had told Fletcher to phone, and they started to quarrel. I was afraid they could be heard in the church."

"Pipe down," I warned them. "Do you want to break up the wedding?"

"That's exactly what she'd like to do," Jim said. "Come on in here where we can talk." And he pulled her toward the door of the study. That's the last I saw of Choo Choo."

"Who is Fletcher?" Kilday wanted to know.

"That's Jim's man-servant," Royce explained.

"And that was the last you saw of Franklin, too?" inquired Peter.

"Yes. But I spoke to him after that."

"When?"

Royce faced Peter squarely. "When Callis Shipley came," he said.

"Callis Shipley? Who is that?"

"See here, this is preposterous," Ambrose Carmody interrupted angrily. "Callis was one of the bridesmaids. She was out in front all the time."

"Oh, no, she wasn't," Nick denied. "She was back here just before the wedding. She came running in the side door, very excited and out of breath."

"Where's Rylie? Is he back here?" she wanted to know.

"I told her I didn't think so."

"Then where is Jim Franklin?" she asked me breathlessly. She was so agitated, I was afraid something was wrong, particularly in view of what had happened between Rylie and Jim, just a short time before. So I knocked on the study door.

"Jim asked me what was wanted."

"Have you seen Rylie Carmody?" she asked him. "He isn't in there, is he?"

"When Jim said he wasn't, the girl sort of caught at her throat, and said, 'Oh.'"

"I could see she was very much excited. 'You'd better let me take you around front,' I urged her, but she said, 'Oh, I'll be all right,' and left the way she had come."

"Mr. Royce," demanded Kilday eagerly, "did Callis Shipley have on a blue dress?"

The newspaper man hesitated. "Why, yes, I think she did," he said finally.

Doctor Abernathy sprang to his feet. "You're making a terrible mistake," he cried. "Callis Shipley wasn't the woman in blue—not the woman in blue I saw. That—why, that's absurd." His fingers fumbled with his handkerchief as he mopped his brow.

"I'm sure she was out in the vestibule, in front," added Ambrose Carmody. "You're getting nowhere, jumping about this way, trying to connect innocent people with the crime."

Sergeant Kilday frowned slowly, from one man to the other. Then he turned back to Nick Royce. "You say Callis Shipley came back here after Doctor Abernathy left the room? She was the last visitor?"

Royce nodded.

"There couldn't be any mistake?"

"Not a chance. You see, I've met Miss Shipley a dozen times, recently, at parties given for the bridal party."

"But you never saw the woman in blue that Doctor Abernathy told us about, did you?"

"We've been over that," Royce declared impatiently. "I was out in front, looking for Milo Dunbar."

The sergeant turned to the rector. "How well do you know Callis Shipley, Doctor?"

"I've known her all her life. I christened the child."

"There isn't any chance that you could be mistaken, then?" Kilday worried the question, like a dog with a bone. "You're positive that the woman in blue you told us about, earlier, could not have been Callis Shipley?"

"I am positive of that," declared Doctor Abernathy, and his manner was convincing.

Kilday was baffled. "What do you make of this, Peter?" The detective turned to his friend for suggestion. "Jim Franklin was murdered at or about the stroke of four. He arrived here at twenty minutes of four. In that twenty-minute interval, eight people visited this room, that we know of. Here he ticked them off on his fingers. 'Doctor Abernathy, who was in the church when Franklin was killed; Nick Royce, who was his best man, and claims he was standing right at this door at the time of the murder; Rylie Carmody, who was to have been his brother-in-law, and who quarreled with him in the study; according to two witnesses; Mr. Carmody,' Kilday glanced respectfully toward the banker, 'who explains that he came to demand the truth from Franklin regarding Choo Choo Train; Callis Shipley, one of the bridesmaids, who did not see Franklin while she was here, but did see Nick Royce; another woman, dressed in blue, like Miss Shipley, who has not been identified; Choo Choo Train, the actress, who is supposed to have been in love with the dead man; and Daniel Bullis, who evidently was very angry when he entered the study without knocking.'"

"All this," he threw out his hands in a gesture of despair, "in twenty minutes, and we can't find anybody that seems to know anything."

"And yet we have enough to go on," Peter expressed a confidence he did not entirely feel. "We can talk to Choo Choo Train. We'll want to ask Daniel Bullis some questions. We can discover something of Franklin's private life from his man-servant, Fletcher, whom Mr. Royce mentioned, which may put us on the trail of the mysterious woman in blue; we can locate and identify that woman; we can question Callis Shipley and discover why she was so eager to find Rylie Carmody, and what she was doing back here in the sacristy, when, as a bridesmaid, she was supposed to be with the bridal party, in the front vestibule, and we can look up Rylie Carmody, who quarreled with Jim Franklin so shortly before—"

U. S. GRAIN CROP SHOWS SHARP DROP

Value, However, an Increase Over Last Year.

Washington.—United States production of major grain crops was a billion and a half bushels less than that of 1932, according to final estimates by the Department of Agriculture. This shrinkage represents about 30 per cent of a normal production.

Production figures for the five leading grain crops total 3,757,423,000 bushels in 1932. Greatest shrinkage was in the feed grain crops, this loss amounting to 1,248,000,000 bushels as compared with last year's production. The total value of the 1933 farm crops was placed at $4,076,537,000 by the department.

The value of the 1933 crop was $1,197,020,000 in excess of that for 1932 when the valuation was $2,879,517,000. The total acreage harvested this year was 327,324,000 compared with 353,483,000 last year.

The report increased estimates on wheat, corn and oats, over the preliminary figures, by 75,000,000 bushels, and at first glance this appears to be bearish. But the department also revised its totals for 1932 and 1931, so that, compared with last year's crops, this year's production shows about the same percentage of decrease as shown previously.

Estimate on winter wheat harvested this year is 351,030,000 bushels, compared with 475,709,000 bushels last year and 817,962,000 bushels in 1931. Acreage figures for all three crops were raised, but there was little alteration in the estimates of yield per acre. Spring wheat production is given as 176,000,000 bushels against 269,000,000 bushels last year.

Production of corn is given as 2,330,000,000 bushels against 2,907,000,000 bushels last year and 2,589,000,000 bushels in 1931. Corn area was placed at 102,239,000 acres compared with 108,667,000 acres last year. Yield was 4 bushels per acre less than in 1932.

Crop of oats was only 722,485,000 bushels against 1,247,000,000 bushels last year and 1,127,000,000 bushels in 1931. Area placed at 36,541,000 acres against 41,425,000 acres last year. Yield was 10.3 bushels per acre less than last year.

Barley crop estimated at 156,000,000 bushels against 302,000,000 bushels last year and 199,000,000 bushels in 1931. Area harvested was about 3,000,000 acres less and yield 7 bushels per acre less than last year. Rye production given as 21,184,000 bushels against 40,639,000 bushels last year and 32,000,000 bushels in 1931. Area about 1,000,000 acres smaller and yield 3 bushels per acre less than last year.

Lesson for January 7

BIRTH AND INFANCY OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS; for he shall save his people from their sins. Matthew 1:21.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Gifts for the Little Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—In Search of the Saviour-King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Honoring the Child-King.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Incarnation.

We are now entering upon a six months' study of the gospel according to Matthew. In order that the lessons may be properly presented the teacher must master the book of Matthew as a whole, and then present each lesson in its relation to the central purpose of the book.

The central theme of Matthew is "Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham, the covenant King" (Matt. 1:1).

I. The Birth of Jesus, the King (Matt. 1:18-25).

1. The Saviour was to be the seed of a woman (Gen. 3:15), the son of a virgin. This was fulfilled in the birth of Jesus. The genealogy (Matt. 1:1-17) shows his legal right to the throne. Only a descendant of David could be recognized.

2. The Saviour was to be divine (Isa. 9:6).

He must be more than the son of David in order to be a Saviour. He must be both human and divine. Jesus was begotten by the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary, thus becoming Immanuel, which in its fullness means "God with us, God for us, and God in us."

II. The Childhood of Jesus, the King (Matt. 2:1-23).

1. Wise Men from the East seeking Israel's King (vv. 1, 2). Christ's advent was heralded by a star which guided men of a foreign nation to seek and to worship him, even pouring out their gifts to him. These men were Persian or Arabian astrologers, students of the stars. Their attention was attracted by the appearance of an unusual star. Through the influence of the Jews who remained in Chaldea, or the direct influence of Daniel extending to this time, they had become acquainted with the hope of the Jews as to the Messiah. They may have known of Balaam's prophecy. (Num. 24:17).

2. Herod seeking to kill Jesus (vv. 3-8, 16-18). The news brought by the Wise Men struck terror to Herod's heart. He was not alone in this for all Jerusalem was troubled with him. This news ought to have brought joy, but a glimpse at the social customs in and about Jerusalem at that time enables us to understand why Herod

Builders of Stability

BRIGGS & TURVIAS

and the finale, having been put in shape by Franco Albano, confere of the composer. The libretto is by Giuseppe Adami and Renato Simoni.

A new Mimi in the person of Lucia Diano, youthful Joliet (Ill.) singer, who made her debut in Italy in the same role, is to add interest to the opening bill of the week. In the same bill, as well as in "Manon," will be heard Amund Sjoqvist, new basso of the company, whose Sparafucile in "Rigoletto" and Ramfis in "Aida" last week captivated his audience. Chae Baromeo, the other leading basso, contributes two important characterizations — Mephistopheles in "Faust" and Timur in "Turandot."

Edith Mason and Dimitri Onofrei make a single appearance jointly, singing Marguerite and Faust in the famous Gounod opera of the latter name. Dino Borgioli portrays the tenor heroes of "La Boheme" and "Manon" and Claudio Frigerio's baritone is to pulsate through the scores of the week's first three operas.

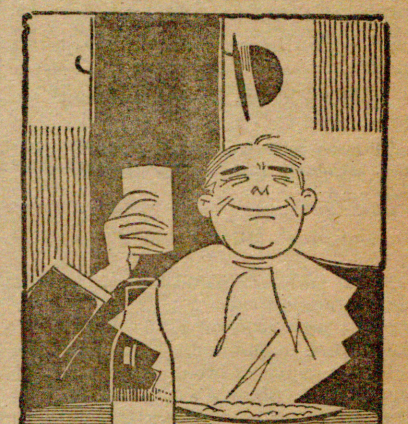

Others to return include Eleanor LaMance, Margery Maxwell, Ada Paggi, Desire Defrere, Vittorio Trevisan and Norman Cordon, while newcomers with the organization — the pick of many at auditions — are Clement Laskowsky, Leota Aikman, Helen Ornstein, Constance Eberhart and Emory Darcy.

Laurent Novikoff's colorful ballet is to be an added attraction of "Faust," "Manon" and "Il Trovatore." Gennaro Papi, musical director will have the assistance of Henry Weber who conducts the French operas.

Dates of performances and casts are as follows:
Monday night, January 8—"La Boheme," with Mmes. Diano and Maxwell; Messrs. Borgioli, Frigerio and Sjoqvist.

Tuesday night, January 9—"Faust" (in French), with Mmes. Mason and Messrs. Onofrei, Baromeo and Frigerio.

Wednesday January 10—"Turandot"

Lost 30 Pounds of Fat in 3 Months

Dizzy Spells Gone

"To-day I started my 4th jar of Kruschen. First I must tell you I lost 30 lbs. in 3 months. I still wish to lose 25 or 30 lbs. I weighed 184 now I weigh 154. Do I feel good—boy I can say I feel better than I've felt in 10 years. Everything was wrong with me from headaches to backaches, my arms and hands would fall asleep at any time. They don't anymore. I used to have dizzy spells. Don't any more. Heartburn was so bad I couldn't eat or sleep. Don't have it any more." Mrs. Arthur Willette, Ferndale, Mich., Aug. 27, 1933.

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, HARMLESS way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drugstore—the cost for a jar that lasts 4 weeks is not more than 85 cents and if after the first jar you are not fully satisfied with results—money back.

The engagement of Gerhardt F. Krog, cashier of the New Lenox State Bank to Miss Anne Marie Ninneman of Chicago, has been announced.

The New Lenox Girls Basketball Team lost an overtime game to the Manhattan girls team by a score of 13 to 11 in the local gym Tuesday evening. The second team lost their game by a score of 9 to 3. The team is sponsoring a dance at the Colonial Dance Hall Wednesday, January 10 to raise money with which to buy suits for the team. Music will be by Ocky Linden's orchestra.

Miss Dolores Feters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feters, and Robert Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Minicus, were married at six o'clock Wednesday night at the M. E. church parsonage. Rev. Paul Dibble performed the ceremony. The bride wore a blue crepe outfit. Robert Swanson and Erma Strasburg were the attendants. Miss Strasburg wore a maroon transparent velvet dress. After the wedding the party went to the Feters home where a three course dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Reed now have rooms at the home of Mr. and Mrs. August Osmus.

ORLAND PARK

Harry Cox has been very ill with pneumonia the past week.

The Orland Park Camp of the R. N. A., will hold their installation of officers on the night of January 29. The Orland Park village board is to meet next Monday evening.

The CWA projects work is going on. The crown of the hill in the street in front of the St. Michael church is being cut down. Twenty-one men are being employed on the various projects.

On January 12th and 13 the Junior 6 conference basketball tournament will be held at Beecher. The following school teams will participate: Crete, Orland Park, Manhattan, Mokena, Mokena and Beecher.

Crete and Orland play the first game on Friday, at 2:30; Manhattan and Mokena play the second game at 3:30 p. m. Mokena and Beecher play the third game at 7:30 p. m.

Winners of games 1 and 2 play game 4 at 8:30 p. m.

Saturday, January 13 the losers of game 4 play losers of game 3 in a consolation game at 7:30 p. m. The winners of game 4 play the winners of game 3 for the championship at 8:30 p. m.

The regular monthly P. T. A. meeting will be held Thursday evening, January 11th at the school auditorium.

The regular monthly clinic will be held next Wednesday, January 10th. The New Year was ushered in very quietly.

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL NOTES

School opened Tuesday, January 2nd after a week's vacation.

Floyd Cooper entered school Tuesday after an absence of two and one half months due to a broken ankle.

During the vacation celotex was added to the walls of the grade rooms, thus insuring a comfortable temperature at all times.

Miss Van Camp attended the Illinois State Teachers Meeting held in Springfield, December 26, 27, 28th, as a delegate for the Lake Shore Division.

Miss Schmadeke spent several days visiting in Chicago and Hammond.

Some interesting stories of vacations have been submitted in the Intermediate Room. We are printing a few of them here for our readers.

CHRISTMAS VACATION

On Christmas Day I painted pictures in my book. Then I went skating. When I came home I played with my Fleet Flyer. Donald and I and a lot of other children went flipping cars with our sleds. When we were going along our rope broke and then we went home and got some different rope. Then we went flipping cars again.

EUGENE UTHE

WHAT I DID ON MY VACATION
Christmas Eve I went to the church. When I came back from the church I opened my gifts, then I hung up my stocking and went to bed. Monday I went to my grandmother's for dinner. During the rest of the week I went sleigh riding, played and watched my sister.

ELEANOR KNOX

CHRISTMAS VACATION
I got a new wagon for Christmas. I went coasting and ran into the mud and got it all full of mud. I went to my aunt's Christmas Day for dinner. After dinner we went to the show. I went sleigh riding during the week.

MILDRED DOCTOR

CHRISTMAS VACATION
On my vacation I went to see my girl in Lemont. I went to my aunt Elsie's house and played basket ball. I went sleigh riding down in Brown's field. I went to the show and saw "Moonlight and Pretzels" and that's all the news for today.

BUDDY COX

CHRISTMAS VACATION
The best fun I had was sleigh riding. I also went to my grandmother's farm. She has a big woods and it has a creek running through it. We played there and built bon fires. They have cows and horses, chickens and a pig.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to sincerely thank all relatives, friends and neighbors for the sympathy and kindness shown us during the illness and death of our beloved father.

We thank Rev. John Mullen and Rev. Paul Sanders for their kind and comforting words and the singers for their songs. We also desire to thank all those who so kindly donated the use of their cars.

THE J. T. COOPER FAMILY

LINCOLN ESTATES

Mrs. Mary Petrich is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Stich.

The Slagle family have moved to Chicago for the cold months.

Several members of the Wm. Martin Post No. 725 of the V. F. W. attended the New Year eve dance at Joliet given by the Veterans of Cantigny Post. A wonderful time was had by all.

While we are reducing the value of the dollar, why not relieve the statute books of thousands of worthless laws. A multiplicity of laws is an invitation to the unscrupulous to try his hand at ducking them. Try to get justice today by the law, and see how far you get.

The people of Israel were God's chosen people. He gave them laws which were just and perfect. There were ten in number. They are just as applicable and efficacious today as then. An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth we don't like, so we write volumes and volumes of laws and hope to find somewhere therein a justification for whatever we want to do.

A typical American, when questioned as to why laws were made, replied, "To be broken". If a law is not to be vigorously enforced, it should never be made. Laws without teeth, are always regarded with contempt. A dozen fundamental laws strenuously enforced would do more to correct our sociological chaos than the combined forces of the Army and Navy.

The Restless Dollar
Visiting the Upper Air
12,000 Against the Tick
Crime Does Not Pay

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale knows about political economy and says the plans and policies of President Roosevelt "are substantially right," which is a good thing for a professor to say. The professor is pleased because President Roosevelt is seeking "stabilization" of the dollar, and quotes the President's message to the London conference last July:

"The United States of America seeks the kind of dollar which, a generation hence, will have the same purchasing power and debt paying power as the dollar we hope to attain in the near future."

Of course, President Roosevelt did not literally mean that any dollar could have, a generation hence, the same purchasing power as it has now. Values and purchasing power depend on the price of human labor.

The first United States attempt to explore the upper atmosphere ended when Lieut. T. G. W. Settle and Maj. Chester L. Fordney came down in a New Jersey swamp after sailing with a gas bag 61,237 feet into more than the air.

Eleven miles up into the air ocean above our heads is a good first attempt. It is as though some deep-sea fish should swim up a tenth of a mile from the bottom of water five miles deep.

When the two stratosphere flyers reached a point 11 miles above the earth they still had 400 miles to go to reach the thin outside edge of our air ocean.

Some day, perhaps, men will leave our atmosphere entirely and go on to the moon or possibly some near planet. But that will not happen soon.

Going about 1,000 miles an hour, it would take five years to reach our neighbor Mars when it comes "near" us—within 40,000,000 miles.

The Department of Agriculture will put 12,000 men to work on "tick eradication." The "tick," improperly called sometimes the Texas tick, attaches itself to cattle in the field, hangs on for life, drinking the animal's blood. "Ticky" cattle are thin, miserable, scrawny and almost worthless. The remedy is to dip afflicted animals in a liquid that destroys ticks and then keep them away from infected animals. The poor tick will not put up much of a fight against Uncle Sam, for when it falls off a cow it can walk only a few inches, and must wait until another animal stands still while it climbs up.

Crime does not pay. Two young men in California kidnaped a youth, twenty-two years old, and confess that they murdered him. After the murder, seeking to extort $40,000, they telephoned the parents, "The easiest thing would be to kill your son, with little danger to us." They did kill him, but not with "little danger." Both are in jail, soon to learn from California justice how dangerous their kidnapping was.

Thanks to the Department of Justice and secret service, which cannot be too highly praised, kidnaping has become a dangerous industry.

One man's meat is another's poison. Cigar manufacturers tell NRA that raising wages in the cigar industry will make the five-cent cigar impossible. The code would pay 28 cents an hour to makers of cigars by hand, 32 cents for operators of machines that make cigars. That does not seem excessive. Some one will continue the five-cent cigar.

The number of deaths in childbirth is greater in this country than in any other civilized country on earth, a record that disgraces "the richest nation."

It is customary to attribute such leathens to lack of medical care. The New York Academy of Medicine reports that the incompetency of doctors is responsible for 61 per cent of "avoidable" deaths of mothers during childbirth during the last three years in New York state.

Italian newspapers, including Mussolini's Popolo D'Italia, suggest that Italy may withdraw from the League of Nations, considering the fact that Germany and Japan have withdrawn, and that Russia and the United States are not members.

What Mussolini thinks of the league he expressed briefly: "Its very principle is absurd."

Europe will ask whether Italy's withdrawal from the league means a possible combination with Germany.

Gold went up again, the dollar fell. Stocks went up, as usual when the dollar drops. The "market" is a saw-saw, stocks on one end, dollars on the other.

But don't worry too much about your dollar, always bearing in mind that, no matter what Europe thinks of it, our dollar will buy anything in the United States and things you need are all to be found here.

If you feel gloomy, and take our depression too seriously, spend an hour or two in a well-managed American public school among the teachers and children and your gloom will vanish.

install GAS HEAT at the new low rate

To prove that every home can now afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

EVERY day you're without automatic gas heat, you miss many, many conveniences of this modern-day means of heating. You miss the luxury of getting up on chilly mornings to a warm house, the even, regulated heat that promotes the health and contentment of the entire family—and other advantages.

Why not install gas heat now and end all heating worries forever—daybreak fire-fixing, back-breaking coal shoveling, dirty hours of ash shaking and hauling, chopping kindling, and above all else—everlasting watching and regulating.

Every home—even the most modest—can now afford to heat with gas. Rates are one-half of what they were during the 1930-31 season.

We take the risk

Without one cent of investment by you we'll install a modern, efficient gas burner in your furnace or boiler. We pay the cost. You try gas heat one month, two months or a year. During this period you pay only $3.00 a month rental for the equipment in the average home.

But if for any reason within the first year you decide that you don't like gas heat, we'll take it out and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. The rental charge stops immediately.

A HOME-OWNED COMPANY

Illinois residents constitute more than 91 per cent. of the stockholders of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

A large part of these are women. Of the 27,536 stockholders of the company, 25,127 are Illinois homefolks; 10,853 are women, and in addition, 3,367 wives jointly own stock with their husbands. Nearly all employees are stockholders.

Anything that affects the stability of the company vitally affects the savings of this large portion of the population.

Now in effect

BIG FACTOR IN CURE IS TRAVEL TO ATTAIN IT

I am not denying virtue to the European thermal springs. I believe that they have it. Anyhow, the foreign cure almost invariably is based on it. It may take the form of mud packs, as in Czechoslovakia; the water may and does vary in temperature and in its very mild chemical constituency. But the European cure remains largely a water cure, supplemented by diet, rest and exercise.

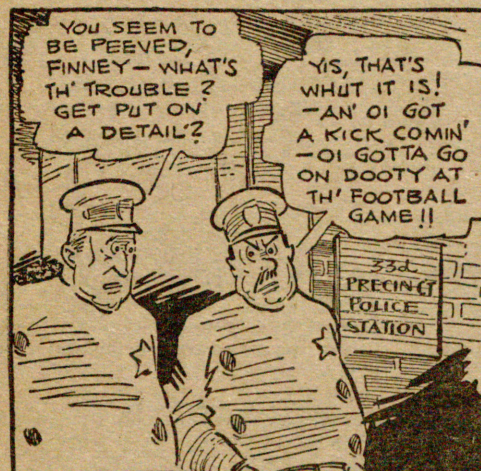

That these cures are effective is shown by the almost incredible number of people, Europeans, British and American, with whom the visit to this spa or that had been an annual affair. They go back year after year for their cure. Just how many of them could find precisely the same thing at home is a controversial matter. It is my own belief that all of them probably could, but that very often a part of the cure is this very matter of escape from home.

But one outstanding fact became more and more evident to us as time went on. The people who received most benefit were not the actively ill, but the ones who needed reconditioning. For this purpose, and for the ailments which lack of condition always implies, foreign cure is admirable.

Not because practically the same thing could not be taken at home. America at least has a wealth of thermal springs. But because it would not be taken. The man who has crossed 3,000 miles of ocean in search of improvement is likely to do all he can to secure it.—Mary Roberts Rinehart in the Saturday Evening Post.

Road Statistics Prove Sunday Is Danger Day

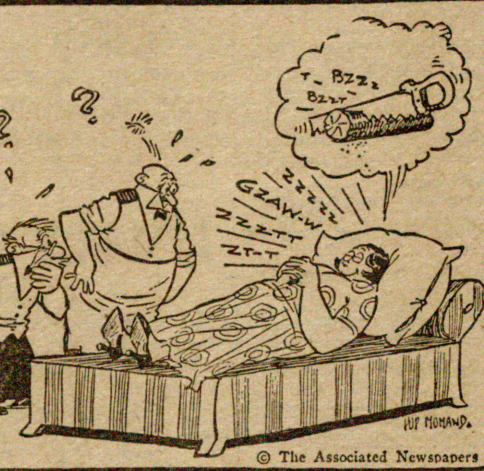

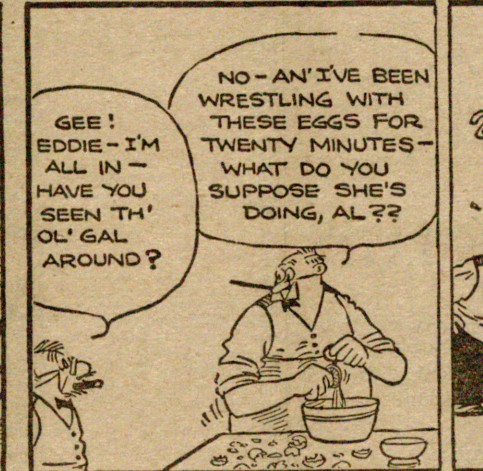

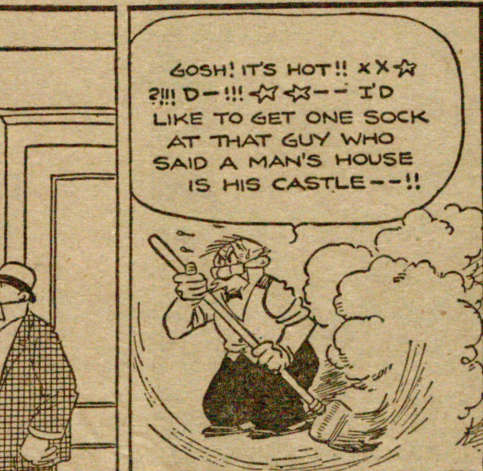

Between seven and eight o'clock at night is the world's most dangerous hour. The 6,000 fatal accidents on Britain's highways during the past year bear witness to this fact. But most accidents of all kinds occur between five and six o'clock. From six to seven there is a decided lull.

It is curious that although the accidents recorded between 10 p. m. and midnight are fewer than from eleven o'clock in the morning to three in the afternoon, the number of fatalities in these two night hours is much greater.

In America last year 400,000 accidents, resulting in 13,000 deaths, occurred between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m., whereas in the night half of the clock out of a total of 336,200 accidents no fewer than 15,500 proved fatal.

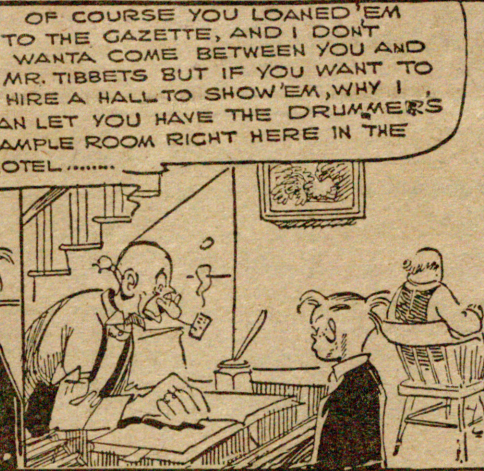

The most dangerous day of the week for road-users—motorists and pedestrians—is Sunday.—London Answers.

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on. Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops all coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of all colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use. (adv.)

CARE OF THE NECK

DOES your neck receive the same diligent care as your face? Every time you cleanse your face, do you just as thoroughly and carefully cleanse your neck? If you use cleansing cream on your face, do you carry the same cleansing method down to the shoulders? And when you massage a rich, nourishing cream or pat with a good astringent do you automatically include your neck as part of your face? Those in the know in beauty circles take all this for granted.

During the winter months the neck needs even more attention than the face. Exposure to the elements means dust and drying winds. Fur collars, scarves, etc., constantly rubbing against the skin make it rough and dark. In addition to the daily regime of cleansing, exercising and nourishing from which most faces grow younger and lovelier, the neck needs frequent bleaching treatments, too.

A smooth, white, swan-like throat will be yours if you are faithful in this simple treatment.

Once or twice a week, whether you are bleaching your face or not, bleach the neck. First cleanse thoroughly with a good cleansing cream. Then spread your bleach over your neck; a ready prepared cream or lotion, or a bleaching mask, or half peroxide and half lemon juice. When you feel a tingling or drawing sensation remove. Now generously massage nourishing skinfood. Bleaches are drying, you know, and this must be counteracted or lines and wrinkles will result. Leave a little of the cream on overnight.

In the morning, remove any of the cream that is still left on the skin and pat with witch hazel to which a few drops of benzoin have been added, or with a ready-prepared skin tonic or astringent suited to your own needs (a mild tonic for the dry skin, a stronger astringent for the oily).

If you use a finishing lotion or cream on face, be sure to carry it downward over the entire neck too. And as for powder, it should never stop at the jawline. The proper way to blend powder is on the up and up, from base of neck to top of forehead.

Remember that the pores of the skin, like the lungs perform a double function. They eliminate waste. They take in new, health-giving matter—oxygen, moisture, electricity, tonic breaths of ozone by the sea or balsam in pine woods. The skin absorbs various strengthening bath tonics, salt rubs, oils and other medicaments.

SMOOTH, RUBY LIPS

RIDING on the wing of winter's winds come chapped lips. And so many are now voicing that complaint that we had all better get together and do something definite to counteract the condition. These chill days tend to chap and coarsen the lips.

Very often the chapping and actual breaking of the thin skin is aggravated by constant moistening. So many of us do that unconsciously. At time is it good for us and during the winter it is very definitely harmful. Worst of all, it is a natural thing to wet the lips when they feel parched, drawn and rough.

Biting the lips is another evil that too many women unconsciously indulge in. If your lips do not have that wee bit of dewiness that is youthful and natural, call your pomade or cream to your assistance. If you use a nourishing cream for face and neck, be sure to massage a little on your lips, too. Camphor ice is good and there are many colorless pomades in the form of lipsticks that give the lips a dewy mist that seems to brighten their natural color and at the same time keeps the skin soft and protected.

Before make-up, if your skin is generally dry and you are using a protective finishing cream, massage just a wee bit of it on your lips, too. No need to use a great deal. A little is enough. With your index finger massage gently but with a firm, pressing movement into your lips. Now we come to the coloring of the lips. Choosing a lipstick becomes a delicate business during the cold months. The harsh, hard type of lipstick can be simply ruinous to the silky texture of the lips. If you find that your stick needs a great deal of rubbing to leave a colorful impression, try losing it and choose a stick of creamy consistency instead. Of course, if it is too soft and creamy, it will smear and leave an ugly line that smart women try to avoid.

After you have carefully applied the color to the lips, give it time to set. Don't eat or drink anything immediately afterwards. Don't rub your lips, moisten or bite them at any time, particularly not after they have been rouged.

The purpose of rouge and powder is to enhance your natural loveliness. Cosmetics add the lovely finishing outside touches which accentuate beauty or lend an illusory charm, as a lovely dress decorates a lovely body. They are finishing touches, not foundations. They may be washed off, but the real foundation of beauty should be lasting, built into health by proper living.

Lunch for the School Child

Bulletin Recently Published by the Bureau of Home Economics in Washington Offers Some Valuable Suggestions.

Mothers almost at their wits' end struggling with the problem of devising and preparing nutritious and attractive food for the younger members of the family will be interested in the following comment and advice:

"The nutrition column has received several letters in the past few weeks in regard to the problem of luncheon for school children. As soon as little children begin to leave the constant care of the home, adjustments must be made in the plan which has been developed and followed since infancy.

"School days begin early for some children these days, as the nursery schools take children from two years on. These are becoming increasingly popular, especially for the mothers who do work outside their own homes. Day nurseries which care for children of working mothers have been in existence for a long time, but it is only within the past few years that new educational methods for good training in all habits include that of eating wisely.

"The nursery school—so called—in its highest development may be seen at Teachers' college, Columbia university, where teachers are trained especially for this work. Children in these schools stay for the greater part of the day.

"Even when kindergarten and primary school children go home for lunch, mothers often find that the change from home routine creates some meal problem. I should like to recommend to all mothers a bulletin prepared by Mary E. Sweeney, assistant director, Merrill-Palmer school, and Charlotte Chatfield, specialist in food and nutrition, bureau of home economics, Washington, published by the United States Department of Agriculture as circular 203. The title of this is 'Midday Meals for Preschool Children in Day Nurseries and Nursery Schools,' and this bulletin is the product of the experience of the Merrill-Palmer school, which has been the pioneer in this work.

While this material has been developed scientifically, all mothers will find here material for study and for application. The modern mother is always looking for help of this sort. The portion on menu planning, while it has been developed particularly for the needs of young children, in principle applies to the feeding problem of all children. I quote a portion of this for your consideration:

"The nutritive value of the food is not the only consideration in feeding the young child. His appetite or desire to eat, which is affected by many factors, internal and external, has an important bearing on his food intake. In order to attach pleasant memories to food, all associations during the meal hour should be attractive in flavor, color, odor and texture. Careful preparation and attractive service contribute also to the esthetic appeal of food. Serving food that is burned, undercooked, lumpy or too hot may take away the appetite and give rise to a prejudice that it requires months of re-education to overcome.

"A diet containing the right proportions of the different nutrients tends to promote a good appetite. A specific influence on the appetite seems to come from vitamin B. Small portions of food and an opportunity for second servings, inspire a much greater desire to eat than large portions. Small servings also help the child form the habit of finishing what is placed on his plate. Appetite is stimulated physiologically by hunger contractions in the empty stomach. A regime that places meals far enough apart and reduces or eliminates the practice of eating between meals allows normal hunger to develop and stimulates the desire for food.

"The physical and emotional condition of the child plays an important role. The healthy, active, well-nourished child usually has at mealtime a noticeable eagerness for food that is often absent in the child who is physically below par. Frequent colds, ear troubles and other infections, all seem to affect the appetite. In a healthy child a sudden lack of interest in food may be a sign of approaching illness or fatigue. Children who are fatigued from over-strenuous play, excitement or insufficient sleep may show a disinterest in, or even an active distaste for food. Their desire to eat is usually restored by a short rest just before mealtime. Emotional upsets from fear, anger or disappointment, if experienced near the meal hour, also affect the appetite. Urging children to eat a full meal under any of these conditions is not advisable. It is better for them to eat nothing or to eat lightly, and to rest quietly until the next meal. If poor appetite becomes chronic, the advice of a physician should be sought. The child whose mealtimes have always been treated without stress or apparent concern is not likely to develop faulty food habits. Wholesome food properly prepared and given to the child without special comment is usually eaten as a matter of course."

NEED SPIRIT OF THE PIONEERS

The three general reasons for thanksgiving which the President asked us to recall were the courage of the pioneers, the vision of the founders, the steadfastness of those who have fought "to keep pure the ideal of equality and hold clear the goal of mutual help." The greatest of these is the first, for it is fundamental to the other two. Without courage there could not have been the America "set aside for mortals not to mar." Without it we shall not have vision and steadfastness for new thanksgivings.

America's social development, as Frederick J. Turner, the historian of the frontier, said, "has been continually beginning over again on the frontier." He was thinking of the geographical frontier, and its primitive conditions with which the pioneers had to fight naked-handed. What they were is suggested by this fragment of a letter from one of these pioneers to friends in the East:

"But if you can bear grief with a smile, can put up with a scale of accommodations ranging from the soft side of a plank before the fire (and perhaps three in a bed at that) down through the middling and inferior grades, if you are never at a loss for ways to do the most unpracticable things without tools, if you can do all this and some more come on. . . . It is the universal rule here to help one another, each one keeping an eye single to his own business."

We are now out on other frontiers, where discomforts challenge even more fiercely the spirit of millions for whom there are no unoccupied lands beyond and still beyond. With this call for courage on their part is the frontier obligation of mutual helpfulness, resting upon their neighbors, either in individual or community or more widely associated effort.

One thing that impressed De Tocqueville, when he visited America one hundred years ago, was that these settlers of a wilderness had the capacity for "extra-legal, voluntary association." The house raising, the apple paring, the squatters' associations whereby they protected themselves against speculators, the camp meetings, the cattle raisers' associations, are a few of the indications which Professor Turner cited in emphasizing the American trait which in its later applications has come to be one of the most important features of the United States of today. In 1918 this historian of the frontier was saying, as if in prophecy of what is happening today: "America does through informal association and understandings on the part of the people many of the things which in the Old world are and can be done only by governmental intervention and compulsion."

Here is the heritage that the courage of those who settled a wilderness left us: "A passionate belief that a democracy was possible which should leave the individual a part to play in free society and not make him a cog in a machine operated from above; which trusted in the common man, in his tolerance, his ability to adjust differences with good humor, and to work out an American type from the contributions of all the nations."—New York Times.

GREAT NEED SEEN IN THE TRAINING OF CHILD TASTE

There seems to be no unity of thought or action on what is suitable for the children to see and hear.

One group advocates reducing literature and the stage to a status where it is safe for the children, another is all for giving the children untrammelled freedom to see and read what they like.

In one case the world would have to be adjusted to the moron, in the other, the undeveloped mind is forced beyond its capabilities. That there might be a middle way seems to have been forgotten.

The level of moron intelligence is seldom over twelve years, and the prospect of making the artistic world safe for them is appalling to the average adult.

Some educators are aware of the dangers of a too strong emotional diet for the young. Some, here and there, have studied the situation and instituted children's days at movie houses and theaters. Nearly every library has a children's department, book stores grade their children's books according to age.

But in spite of all the effort which has been made, the children still flock to sophisticated plays and pictures, still read the frank, often broad book or paper of the moment, until the chief cry of the reformer is "We must censor!"

Much of what is written and produced is no doubt unnecessary and undesirable, but censoring merely drives it underground and increases its danger.

If we allow our children unlimited license we spoil the children, if we attempt to suit all books and drama to their capacities we ruin art.

What we need far more is to pay attention to the children's development, to keep track of what they are seeing and hearing, and to start early to train their taste.—Brooks Peters Church, in Indianapolis News.

Carillons Increase in Favor With Americans

Holland and Belgium have long looked upon carillon playing as a great national institution, but it is only within the last few years that carillon recitals have drawn crowds in the United States.

To read that 25,000 people flocked to a little village in Massachusetts, and that traffic was diverted from an important arterial thoroughfare in a New Jersey town, and all to hear the ringing of bells, sounds like a fairy tale. But such are the facts.

Few ever heard of Cohasset until Mr. Cram built a small church with a rugged tower there, and a wide-awake rector hung fifty-one tuned bells in the tower. We used to motor through Morristown, N. J., with one eye on the traffic cop and the other on McKim, Mead and White's fine tower. But since thirty-five tuned bells have been hung in that tower, we stand in the graveyard in snow a foot deep and freeze our toes, simply to hear the unearthly music that Mr. Locke or Mr. Parsons can send floating down.

Within the last nine years, some thirty carillons have been brought into the United States and six or eight more into Canada. In spite of the depression their number is constantly increasing.

A carillon is a series of at least twenty-three bells, tuned so as to play a chromatic scale. From this small battery of two octaves it may range in size to that of the great Riverside church carillon in New York with seventy-two bells and the Mountain Lake (Fla.) carillon, with seventy-one. On such a set of bells one may play almost anything that can be played on a modern organ, with its standard keyboard of five octaves.—F. R. Webber in the American Mercury.

Only Explanation

The heavyweight boxer was describing his latest fight.

"Yes," he said, "my opponent had to be taken to the hospital with a broken nose, two black eyes, a twisted shoulder blade and a fractured jaw."

"O," exclaimed a friend interested, "did he have a row with the referee?"—Stray Stories.

The Magnetic Pole

Josephine—I understand you had a chance to meet Paderewski when he was here for his farewell concert. How did you like him?

Gertrude—Oh, he's just too fascinating for anything.

Josephine—He must be one of those magnetic Poles they tell about.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Improvement

Tom—I want to marry a girl with $20,000.

Dick—I shan't marry for money. I shall marry for brains.

Tom—Naturally, we're both after what we've least of.—Border Cities Star.

Sounds Dangerous

Phyllis—Do you think kissing is as dangerous as they say?

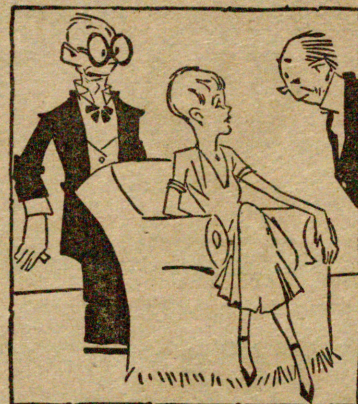

Paul—Well, it has put an end to a good many bachelors.—Border Cities Star.

TO BE FOOLED

Wife—Now, John, dear, my sister, Bell, and her steady are coming to call on us tonight. So you must act the part of an ideally happy married man. She's not quite sure of him yet.

John (savagely)—Leave it to me! That lobster trimmed me in a poker game once. This is my chance to even matters. Just leave it to me! —Border Cities Star.

WHERE HE SHONE

Father—Has this flane of yours any ability whatever in any direction?

Daughter—Oh, father, he proposes most beautifully.

How It's Done

"How is it that that wizard dentist at the circus show can pull teeth so painlessly?"

"A brass band blares out so loudly at the dentist's signal that the audience can't hear the victim when he hollers."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Inhabiting the Earth

"Do you believe in government ownership?"

"I do," answered Senator Sorghum. "Every time I get a tax bill I realize who the big landlord is who calls for the rent and will not be denied."

A Self-Starter

Doctor—Don't let your husband drink strong coffee. It excites him too much.

Wife—If his coffee is not strong, he gets excited of his own accord.—Koinische Illustrierte.

Williamson Tells

His Side of Story

H. L. Williamson, well known and popular secretary of the Illinois
Press Association has issued the following self explanatory statement in regard to his recent indictment by a Springfield grand jury:

"In all sincerity, I desire you to believe me when I assert that there isn't a word of truth in any charge that has been made against me. These accusations had their inception in a political difference between Governor Horne, and myself. I have no apologies to make for my political opposition to the present Governor.
I believed then and I believe now, that it is a right and a duty, and not a mere privilege of every American citizen to support or oppose whom he desires.

"It is well known that a grand jury conducts its hearings behind closed doors and hears but one side of the case. An indictment by has never been and will never be, as long as American institutions survive, taken as proof of guilt. I now urge and will continue to urge an immediate trial of this case, and where my first opportunity of defense against these unwarranted accusations is made available to me in open court.

"More than words can tell, I appreciate the friendship and faith which has been extended to me during these unfounded and prejudiced charges. I owe it to myself and to everything that is near and dear to me to prove my innocence and bring about my complete vindication.
I am not unmindful of the great power of a governor, against which I, as a private citizen, must wage this contest; but truth will ultimately obtain, and my vindication be made complete, and your faith in me justified."
